What are Local Wildlife Sites?

Local Wildlife Sites are areas of land or water that support species and/or habitats of substantive nature conservation value. The Derbyshire Local Wildlife Site system seeks to ensure, in the public interest, the conservation, maintenance and enhancement of these sites.

- ❖ The Local Wildlife Site system is non-statutory and does not impose any legal constraints upon normal land management practices at sites.
- ❖ Sites are assessed against the Derbyshire Local Wildlife Site Selection Guidelines 2003 (revised and amended 2011). These guidelines set thresholds for the selection of individual habitats and species.
- ❖ Changes to the Register including new site designations are undertaken annually by the Derbyshire Local Wildlife Sites Panel.
- ❖ Local Wildlife Sites provide wildlife refuges for most of the UK's fauna and flora and through their connecting and buffering qualities and they make an essential contribution to ecological networks and green infrastructure.
- ❖ Local Wildlife Sites have a significant role to play in meeting local and national biodiversity targets.
- ❖ Local Wildlife Sites often contribute to landscape character and distinctiveness.
- ❖ Local Wildlife Sites contribute to the quality of life and the well-being of the community, with many sites providing opportunities for recreation, research and education.
- ❖ The selected sites are marked on Local Plans and under government guidance local authorities have developed planning policies to help protect sites from development pressures.

Updates

The Local Wildlife Sites Register is updated annually after the meeting of the Local Wildlife Sites Assessment Panel. This allows for new sites to be added, sites to be removed if they no longer qualify as Local Wildlife Sites and for boundaries to sites to be amended.
